This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE

THE Society of Lincoln's Inn has in its Library a very large number of pamphlets and other publications of a similar nature. Some of these, e.g., reports of Trials, are included in the general Catalogue, but the bulk of them had not hitherto been catalogued according to modern requirements, though a manuscript slip-catalogue rendered them available to a certain extent.

The Masters of the Bench, wishing to make the pamphlets more easily accessible, directed me to prepare a catalogue, to include all items down to the year 1700 as a first instalment. In order to make this as complete as possible, it was decided that a very wide interpretation should be placed on the word "pamphlet," so that sermons, trials, proclamations, et hoc genus omne, should be included, whether or not they already appeared in the general Catalogue.

The question of the best arrangement of a catalogue of this nature is one of some difficulty. In the old manuscript slip-catalogue referred to above, each item appeared under the head of the author, when known, and where this was impossible, under the subject. This plan works admirably with known authors, but in other cases is exceedingly troublesome. It was therefore decided to follow the plan adopted in the Catalogue of the Thomason Tracts, recently issued by the Trustees of the British Museum, and to print the titles in chronological order so far as possible. The advantages of this system to the student of history are incalculable; a proclamation or speech may beget a sermon, which in turn may give rise to a tract. The pamphleteers of the seventeenth century were in the habit of answering and criticizing one another, much in the way that a correspondence nowadays goes on in the columns of the daily press or in the pages of magazines and reviews. In any arrangement other than chronological, the fact of this sequence is wholly lost, and it is impossible to grasp the bearing that one publication may have on another.

In the case of undated items every effort has been made to ascertain an actual or approximate date. The greatest difficulty was experienced with the large collection of parliamentary petitions and cases; these rarely have a date, but a reference to the Journals of both Houses has in most cases resulted in finding some indication of date. In other cases the main catalogue of the British Museum Library, and Mr. Arber's Term Catalogues, have also been freely consulted. The above-mentioned Catalogue of the Thomason Tracts was not completed when this Catalogue was passing through the press, but the Principal Librarian kindly allowed me to examine the sheets, with satisfactory results in many cases. The authority for these added dates is given in footnotes.

The question which date to adopt where, as frequently happened, more than one was available, had to be considered. The plan finally adopted was a scale of dates in order of preference:

i. The definite date shown by the subject matter of the pamphlet, such as the delivery of a speech or a sermon or the actual day of a trial.

ii. The date of the preface, or dedicatory letter, if any, or the date of issue in the case of proclamations.

iii. The manuscript date, which appears on a few of the Lincoln's Inn pamphlets, and on a large number of the Thomason Tracts.

iv. The date of the imprimatur.

v. The date of the license, from the Term Catalogues.

vi. The date shown by internal or external evidence.

vii. The date of publication appearing on the title-page.

viii. The approximate date, as nearly as it can be arrived at.

These, it will be understood, have been used in the order shown above. Thus, if a date can be found under class i, the remainder are disregarded. If no date appears under class i, then the date under class ii is given, and so on.

Where year, month, and day can all be ascertained, the items are arranged in strict chronological order; those with year and month only, are placed at the end of the month; and those with year only, at the end of the year.

In a few cases it has been found possible to note that the date was before or after a particular day.

A novel feature, which it is hoped will prove useful, is the noting of all dedications; apart from the biographical interest attaching to these, they may be helpful in affording clues to the authors of anonymous pamphlets, and in showing the political bias or other relationship of author and patron.

Full indices of persons, places, and subjects are appended. A short account of the various collections follows.

The Brydall Collection.—This collection of pamphlets, etc., was made by John Brydall, a member of the Society. It is largely contemporary, but not entirely so. The earliest item in point of date of publication is No. 23, dated 1599; then follow 1601 (No. 27), 1605 (No. 36), 1609-10 (No. 47), 1613 (No. 64), 1616 (No. 91), 1617 (No. 100), 1620 (Nos. 131, 141, 142), 1624 (No. 186), 1625 (Nos. 195, 196), 1627 (No. 201), 1628 (No. 205), 1630 (Nos. 220, 221), 1635 (No. 248), 1636 (No. 253), 1637 (Nos. 263, 268, 272), 1639 (Nos. 278, 279), 1640 (Nos. 283, 285, 286, 293, 294, 295), and so on. Brydall was admitted a student of Lincoln's Inn on 22nd February, 1655 (called to the Bar, 1st May, 1662), so that these earlier pamphlets must have been obtained by him some time after their publication, unless, indeed, his father began the collection. A few of later date than 1700 are not included in this calendar. In many cases Brydall has written on the title-page various notes as to date or authorship; these are all printed here, and are of considerable value as showing contemporary opinion or gossip.

A short account of Brydall appears in the Dictionary of National Biography.

The final volume of the series contains the following note:

"A Catalogue of all the divers and various Discourses, Pamphlets, and other Papers conteined in Brydall's Thirty and nine Tomes or volumes, which he gave on the 17th day of Januarie, 1706, to the publique Library belonging to the Honourable Society of Lincoln's Inne.

"Together with a Speciall Table (Alphabetically disposed) of severall Remarkable Matters to be met withall in the Thirty and nine Tomes or volumes aforesaid.

"As also a Table of those Sermons that have been preached upon Extraordinary Occasions, as on 30th of January; at Funirals; at Consecrations; Before ye Artillery Company; upon Inaugurations; At a Coronation; At Assizes; At confirmacions; on Good Friday; upon Fast Dayes, Thankesgiving Dayes, etc."

There is no reference to this gift in the Black Books.

At the end of this volume is "A List of the severall Discourses written and expos'd to publique view by John Brydall of Lincoln's Inne, Esquire." This list contains the titles of thirty-one works, with the dates of printing; the first is Speculum juris Anglicani, printed in 1673, and the last is Erotema Pontificiarum, printed in 1707.

Following this list is a short account of Brydall's family, which is worth printing in full:

"Sir William Dugdale (in his History of Saint Paul's Cathedrall in London: pag. 106 & 107; pr. 1658)[1] gives

[1] This portion of the inscription is omitted by Ellis. In the earlier editions it appears as part of the plate.

[2] Brydall omits the Latin verses which follow in Dugdale.

"So that Sir John Wolley was my Great Grandmother's uncle, or (if you will) my Great Grandmother's Mother's Brother; I being now from him in the 6th Degree by the way of Consanguinitie, though in Order and Descent but in the fourth Degree.

"Anno 1706."

The Carleton Collection.—These were collected by Hugh, Viscount Carleton, Lord Chief Justice of Ireland, who died in 1826.

They mostly relate to Ireland, and only six of them come within the date of this catalogue.

The collection was purchased by the Society in 1842. They are not referred to by name in the Black Books, but an order of 18th January of that year,—"that the Library Committee, with the assent of the Master of the Library, have full power to purchase such books as they may think requisite"—may possibly have some reference to the purchase.

The Cooper Collection.—These are from the library of the late Charles Purton Cooper, Q.C., a Bencher of the Inn. They were presented by him in 1843 (see Black Books, 8th November, 1843), together with a large number of other works, amounting in the whole to nearly 2,000 volumes.

The Cooper pamphlets contain a large number of foreign juridical tracts or theses; it is proposed to deal with these separately, and only those relating to English law or history are here included.

The Coxe Collection.—In 1785 John Coxe, junior, a Bencher, bequeathed to the Society a number of manuscripts and about 5,000 volumes of printed books, of which this collection of pamphlets formed part. In consequence of this bequest the Library (then at the top of what is now known as No. 2, Stone Buildings), had to be enlarged; see Black Books, 11th May, 1785.

The Hill Collection.—This collection of Law Tracts was made by George Hill, Serjeant-at-Law, a member of the Inn (admitted 25th April, 1765). He was originally of the Middle Temple, where he was admitted on 5th January, 1733, and called to the Bar on 27th November, 1741. He was created a Serjeant-at-Law and appointed King's Serjeant on 6th November, 1772. His "manuscript collection of books and notes" was purchased by the Society from his executors in 1808. It does not appear whether the pamphlets were included in this purchase or another; those volumes which have not been rebound are all inscribed "Lincoln's Inn Library, 1808," and the Library Rules framed in that year refer to "the books purchased of Mr. Serjeant Hill's executors, with his numerous manuscript notes and references thereon" (Black Books, 6th July, 1808).

Legal Pamphlets.—A collection formed by the Society; the items are marked "L.P."

Lilburne Tracts.—One volume, containing six tracts relating to John Lilburne, 1645 and 1646; apparently not a contemporary collection.

London Tracts.—A small collection in two volumes, dating from 1641 to 1650, purchased; not a contemporary collection.

Miscellaneous Pamphlets.—A collection formed by the Society; referred to as "M.P."

Political Pamphlets.—A collection formed by the Society; referred to as "P.P."

Proclamations.—One volume, made up from various sources, mostly from the Salt Collection.

The Prynne Collection.—Most of these appear to have been presented by the author, who was a member of the Inn; some have been purchased by the Society.

The Reed Collection.—The collection was formed by Isaac Reed, editor of Shakespere, and author of various works; see Dictionary of National Biography. He died in 1807, and his library was sold. The Society seems to have purchased these seven volumes subsequent to the sale, since the first volume has pasted on the cover what appears to be a cutting from a bookseller's catalogue.

Theological Pamphlets.—A collection formed by the Society; referred to as "Th.P."

Trials.—A collection formed by the Society.

The volumes of sermons—Bentley's, Donne's, Gataker's, Preston's, and Sharpe's—the collection of David Jenkins' tracts, and the volume known as "Speeches, etc., of King Charles's Judges," do not call for special comment.

Pamphlets in any of these collections are referred to by the name of the collection and the number of the volume; where the volume is paged, the number of the page or folio is also given; in other cases, the number of the tract in the volume. Where no reference is given, it must be understood that the item is separately bound.

Some sermons, etc., that were accidentally overlooked, and some other items that have been acquired since the text and index were printed off, will be found in the Appendix.
